

The use of the term "hacked e-mail" invites prejudice and seems to suggest that the police enquiry into this aspect of the issue is complete? In any event a more neutral phrase such as "unauthorised release" may help focus on the main issues.

Michael Hughes